Developed in collaboration with Accenture, the 2019 Best Workplaces for Innovators showcases 50 winners from a variety of industries, including biotech, consumer packaged goods, financial services, cybersecurity and engineering. Working together, Fast Company editors and Accenture researchers scored all 362 applications, and a panel of eight eminent judges reviewed and endorsed the top 50 companies. The 2019 awards feature workplaces from around the world and eight of the honorees are based outside the U.S.

"Innovation is critical to our business and to our customers' businesses," said Prith Banerjee, chief technology officer at ANSYS. "Our ongoing investment in R&D and acquisition strategy have allowed ANSYS to create new, transformative simulation tools that help our customers create disruptive technologies that will dominate the market. We have been pioneers in the engineering simulation industry for nearly 50 years; it's an honor to be globally recognized as one of Fast Company's Best Workplaces for Innovators."

"Other titles catalog perquisites and benefits. Fast Company seeks to highlight workplaces that attract and retain the best talent by creating environments where employees are empowered to put forth bold ideas, engage in radical experiments, and even fail, in the name of innovation," says Stephanie Mehta, editor-in-chief of Fast Company.
